The 2019 9 Savatiano is unoaked, very dry and comes in at 12.6% alcohol. The winery's "9" series is named for the 9 Muses who lived in Muses Valley. This is sourced from old vines (with an average age of 60 years). Beautifully done at a very nice price, this has reasonable solidity for its level, freshness and the ability to coat the palate. Pure, if a bit lean, this is a great bargain for warm-weather drinking. It is not so clear how it will age—and I'd suggest drinking it very young—but it should be just lovely next summer. It's worth leaning up for the moment. It will be interesting to see if it can develop.
